

Sunday April 17

Dear D -

I have made an half hour to do what I've so long neglected thank you a rather tell you our thanks for your kindness in sending us the extracts from Anne's letters & the particulars about her - they were very interesting everything about her is so - In my absence Ann would have written you rather than have you wait so long for our thanks but Phoebe has been very ill & under Wendelhoff's care & that has made our house a hospital & turned all its into nurses -

The eggs were extra nice, at least those I am allowed to taste & the others were so reputed by my companions -

There's no news to tell you my lectures are near to their end - & I use leisure evenings now in visits to bid farewell to the water boys Rotham, Loring, etc. At home all. We had a fine gathering at Bridgewater on Fast day & one sermon for passion & one Communion at Monmouth being me to the Annual Meeting & close this Easterday

I write you on this humble paper because I know you'll be kind enough to burn the rest let it ever appear herewith in judgment against my taste. I bought it in the evening at Springfield when there was none else to be had -

So you see the the fact
I put in you to impose bad paper on you.

Mr Nichols the confederate & dead - Mr Loring says she was the only person who ever insulted her father antislavery - only thinks insult good Mr C. Long!
She told her "not to enter her shop she had no n - g - s there & did not wish their friends" -

With kindest regards to your mother & hopes that you'll hold us just as close always and specially when letters come

Yours affly
Amos W. Phelps

Your old friend Munde called last week - Amos Phelps was too ill to see him -

I long to see you & hear all about Kingston & the friends
